CATALOGUE OF DOCUMENTS AND PUBLICATIONS

The documents and publications referred to in this catalogue have been produced between 1989 and 1999 in the framework of UNESCO's education 'upstream' support services to Member States. They concern activities undertaken by or with support of BER/PSA (before 1996) and the ED/ERD Divisions designed to support the elaboration of sector-wide national policies, strategies and action plans for the reconstruction and reform of education systems in Member States in the framework of international development cooperation. Documents are related to country-based activities and, to a lesser degree, to cross-country activities under international working groups and partnerships.

The database which serves for the elaboration of this catalogue is updated regularly and is available for consultation at the Office for Administration and Information of the Education Sector, UNESCO, Paris, as well as at UNESCO's field offices and education institutes throughout the world. It will also be made available through Internet at UNESCO (ED/ERD) Website in the near future. The documents themselves may be consulted at or requested from the Office for Administration and Information (ED/OAI) at UNESCO Paris Headquarters.

The user should be aware of the special nature of this documentary collection which covers a broad variety of documents - from official government and agency documents and publications - to internal and working documents, frequently unofficial, and that they vary widely in quality, completeness and degree of reliability.

Analysis and information presented in the individual documents are those provided by the authors and do not necessarily bear the endorsement of UNESCO.

FOREWORD

For many years UNESCO has co-operated with other Agencies to assist its Member States in the preparation of suitable education projects for international co-operation and funding. This particular aspect of international co-operation is called the 'upstream' phase as it involves the analysis of the educational situation, the definition of country policies and strategies, the drawing up of plans, programmes and projects prior to their actual launching under what is generally referred to as the 'downstream' phase.

Since the 1980s, UNESCO has intensified its efforts to provide 'upstream' services to the Member States in response to the changing conditions in international development co-operation. This co-operation is increasingly focussed on sector-wide policies as opposed to the traditional sub-sector and individual projects approaches. At the same time a large number of countries are increasingly dependant on external financing for their educational investments, particularly the Least Developed Countries. Those countries are doubly dependant on external funding agencies, in particular the World Bank, which holds a leading position both from the financial and technical assistance points of view. In this context multilateral and bilateral funding agencies are often perceived as wielding undue influence on the agenda for national policy analysis and formulation as well as on the investments made by other Organizations and external partners.

In the area of upstream work, UNESCO has earned a reputation as an "honest broker" for its professional independence and sensitivity to the interests of the countries it is servicing. A specific unit for the provision of upstream services was created at UNESCO Headquarters in 1990 in order to respond adequately to the growing demand for such services and was subsequently integrated into the Education Sector in 1996, as part of the Division for the Reconstruction and Development of Education Systems (ED/ERD). The aim was to support national leadership in the preparation of national strategies and action plans, as well as in the mobilisation of national and external resources, both intellectual and financial, which are required for sound and independent policy analyses work. Emphasis is placed on national capacity building, enhancing negotiation skills for policy dialogue and donor co-ordination.

UNESCO has provided education upstream services to well over 30 Member States during the present decade, with special attention being paid to the Least Developed Countries in Africa and South East Asia, as well as to countries undergoing rapid political and economic transition or in post-conflict reconstruction. In recent years, upstream activities have been broadened to encompass several complementary cross-country initiatives, such as the regional Working Group on Education Sector Analysis (WGESA) within the framework of the Association for the Development of Education in Africa (ADEA), as well as inter-agency partnerships on educational reform and international co-operation.

The present catalogue contains bibliographical references of those working documents and research publications produced from 1989 to 1999, either by or with the support of the former division for Policies and Sector Analysis (BER/PSA) before its integration into the ED Sector in 1996 and the ED/ERD Division, as part of UNESCO's education upstream support services to Member States.

The catalogue is primarily addressed to professionals, researchers and students undertaking field research and operational work related to the elaboration of national education policies and programmes within the framework of development co-operation. Although it includes numerous unofficial and internal working papers which vary widely in quality, form or presentation it provides a wealth of methodological, historical and contextual data which we hope will prove useful for information and research purposes. It is also hoped that this initiative will contribute to increasing the dissemination and utilization of field-related information and analysis in international co-operation.

DOCUMENTS CLASSIFICATION CATEGORIES

1. Project Documents and Revisions

Standardised and official documents containing the problem statement, project objectives and expected results. Project documents retained in this catalogue concern selected country upstream services and may be used as practical examples for the development of further projects in similar areas.

2. Country Sector Reviews and Studies

Sector-wide reviews and /or analyses of the education system in a given country (in-depth briefs, needs-assessment report). Usually they provide a synthetic view of the sector, including statistical and institutional information, identification and analysis of issues as well as the priority areas for educational development.

3. Country Sub-Sectoral/Thematic Studies

As above but covering a specific sub-sector or theme. These studies usually serves as inputs for sector-wide reviews. Most internal national and international consultancy reports fall under this category.

4. Country Policy/Strategy Documents and Action Plans

Presentation of national policy or strategy and /or action plans or programme for the development of the education sector or a sub-sector in a given country. They may include detailed action or investment plans with related costing and a summary of the sector or sub-sector situation as well as the related statistical information. Documents submitted to donor round tables/consultations are included in this category.

5. Mission Reports

Reports produced by UNESCO staff or consultants upon return from missions to a given country undertaken in connection with upstream projects and studies. They refer to the mission's context and activities, present follow-up proposals and frequently provide a preliminary substantive report on a given subject.

6. Project Reviews and Evaluation/Final Reports

Descriptive and/or analytical reports on the progress, results and lessons learnt from a given project.

7. Training/Workshop Materials

Specific documentation concerning training activities, national workshops and seminars undertaken in connection with upstream activities.

8. Other project based documents and miscellaneous

Other documents not elsewhere classified.

9. Publication/Research/Methodology Papers

Case studies, generic and or reflective papers and publications referring to international experience in the field of education sector analysis, educational policy and programme development, international aid and related subjects. Most of the papers are closely connected to the experience resulting from the projects and documents listed in the catalogue and database. They may directly refer to one region, sub-region or country.
