Introduction

The Convention on the Rights of the Child incorporates the whole spectrum of human rights -- civil, political, economic, social and cultural -- and provides that respect and protection of all of the children's rights are the starting point for the full development of the potential of the individual in an atmosphere of freedom, dignity and justice.

(Jan Martenson, UN Under-Secretary-General for Human Rights at the Convention signing ceremony, 26 January 1990)

The European Survey on Research and Information on Children's Rights is the result of cooperation between Childwatch International, UNICEF and UNESCO. It addresses the needs of the Facilitating Group of the International Children's Rights Information Network for an overview of existing information sources on children's rights and Childwatch International's interest to create a world-wide overview of ongoing child research.

The European Survey was conducted and funded by Childwatch International with additional funding and support from UNICEF's International Child Development Centre in Florence and UNESCO's Young Child and the Family Environment Unit.

Child Rights Information Network

The idea of forming a child rights information network on an international level was born in 1992 by a group of organisations engaged in child rights issues, including collecting, producing, processing and disseminating child rights information. A Facilitating Group was established consisting of representatives from: Defence for Children International, Human Rights Internet, the International Children's Centre (Paris), the International Save the Children Alliance, the NGO Group on the Convention on the Rights of the Child, Rödda Barnen (Sweden), Save the Children (UK), UNICEF (Geneva) and UNICEF International Child Development Centre (Florence). The Facilitating Group met informally to develop the network and to investigate in ways of improving information exchange to serve the needs of child rights organisations. The Network was formally established at a meeting in Paris in July 1995.

The aims of the Child Rights Information Network are:

- to support and promote the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, at national and international levels;
- to contribute to satisfying the varied information needs of child rights organisations working at the grassroots, national, regional and international levels;
- to support child rights organisations in developing effective information systems and methods of information exchange, using both computerized and traditional networking tools.

Childwatch International - Network for Child Research

Childwatch is an international network for institutions and individuals involved in research for children with the aim of initiating and coordinating research and information projects on children's living conditions and the implementation of children's rights.

Childwatch is a response of the research community to the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the World Summit for Children. Researchers studying issues related to the lives of children and young people can provide important knowledge to facilitate and support the implementation of the Convention and accomplishments of the goals defined in the Summit Plan of Action. Researchers can provide knowledge necessary to define the situation of various groups of children, to develop indicators to measure accomplishment of the goals, and to propose and develop strategies to improve their situation.

Childwatch International serves as an inter-agency consultative network of research institutions and professionals whose work and research interests relate to the children's living conditions in developing and industrialised countries and to the implementation of children's rights. More specifically, the network has defined the following objectives:

- to promote an inter-disciplinary approach to child research and a holistic understanding of children;
- to promote more effective dissemination of the results from child research;
- to encourage and support a dialogue between researchers and decision-makers on the development of strategies for the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and other international agreements concerning child welfare;
- to identify new issues to be included in the global agenda for child research and initiate projects to address them.

In addition, support to capacity building in child research is an important aspect of all relevant initiatives to reach these objectives. Childwatch activities are carried out and coordinated in close cooperation with key institutions of the network.

UNICEF International Child Development Centre

The International Child Development Centre was established in Florence, in 1988, with financial support from the Government of Italy to serve as a centre for learning about children. The primary purpose of the Centre is to strengthen the capacity of UNICEF and its co-operating institutions to respond to the evolving needs of children and to help promote an emerging global ethic for caring for children. It helps to identify and to mobilize support for new directions and challenges, particularly emphasizing the "development" aspects of the child survival and development strategy of UNICEF and its co-operating institutions.

The Centre provides a forum for international professional exchange of experiences and undertakes and promotes policy analysis, applied research and field experimentation, as well as advocacy of innovative strategies and dissemination of ideas towards the goals of child survival, protection and development. It is also to provide, on a selective and gradually expanded basis, special training opportunities for UNICEF staff, concerned government officials, and staff of other institutions with which UNICEF co-operate, including National Committees for UNICEF.

Children's rights have been one of the main programme areas of the Centre since its establishment. With the remarkably rapid and widespread ratification of the 1989 United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, the setting of end-decade goals at the 1990 World Summit for Children, and the on-going preparation of National Programmes of Action (NPAs) to realize these goals on a country-by-country basis, work in this area has become increasingly urgent. The Centre's Child Rights Programme seeks to promote the effective implementation of several important articles of the Convention. Initial research has focused on the general principles contained in the Convention's umbrella provisions, particularly Articles 2, 3 and 4. A number of thematic areas are also being explored, such as issues relating to child labour (Articles 32) as well as the psychosocial effects of war on children (Articles 38 and 39). More broadly, the Centre is investigating mechanisms for monitoring the protection of children's rights, examining successful strategies and techniques of decentralization relating to NPAs, and supporting the development of a children's rights information network.

UNESCO - The Young Child and the Family Environment Unit

With the help of UNESCO's specialized services, its roster of consultants, its partnership with sister agencies of the United Nations and the co-operation of major institutes and NGOs, the Young Child and the Family Environment Unit seeks to:

- improve access to early childhood care and education by making such programmes more widely available and accessible, and improving school-readiness;
- support family education and policy formulation by encouraging the participation and promoting the role of families and communities in basic education programmes;
- improve the content of early childhood programmes, in particular their design and quality;
- redirect and strengthen early childhood training programmes;
- strengthen the information base on early childhood by improving the availability and quality of information and data on young children and their families;
- promote the application of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child through awareness raising and advocacy.

The Articles of the Convention which present a particular challenge to UNESCO are those relating to education (Articles 27, 28 and 29) and culture (Articles 12, 13, 14, 17, 28, 29, 30 and 31). UNESCO promotes the Convention on the Rights of the Child by:

- acting as a focal point for enquiries concerning the Convention, sending out literature and attempting to attend the more important meetings on the Convention convened by the United Nations and NGOs;
- providing assistance to the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child in monitoring the Convention, in particular as it relates to education and culture;
- helping to translate the Convention into national languages;
- contracting original materials on the Convention, especially publications and booklets prepared for or by young children;
- assisting governments and non-governmental organizations in publishing children's versions of the Convention and guidebooks for teachers;
- co-sponsoring meetings on the Rights of the Child with the International Institute for Human Rights Studies (Trieste) the UN Centre for Human Rights (Geneva), the Arab Institute of Human Rights;
- co-operating with UNICEF on matters pertaining to the Convention, within the framework of early childhood education;

The European Survey on Research and Information on Children's Rights

Introduction

With the entry into force of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, there is an increasing awareness of the urgency to develop an effective user-oriented knowledge base on children's rights. Information is a powerful and effective tool in promoting and implementing the rights of children. To make informed decisions concerning children, policy makers, international bodies and civil society need to have access to current, reliable and relevant information from many disciplines and from many sources throughout the world. The current survey is one effort to contribute to this process by providing information from the academic community.

Research related to the lives of children and young people can provide important knowledge to facilitate and support the implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. Research can provide knowledge necessary to define the situation of various groups of children, to develop indicators to measure achievement of the provisions of the Convention, and to propose and develop strategies to improve the status and actual implementation of children's rights.

Background

The survey was designed to seek answers from academic institutions in Europe to two broad questions:

- Are children's rights an active concern of these institutions in their research?
- Have these institutions developed any specific information handling capacity and knowledge base in the area of children's rights?

A questionnaire was developed to compile information on research interests and activities as well as on information collections relating to children's rights. It is hoped that the data base based on the survey will serve as a resource to stimulate international cooperation and comparative research projects as well as to facilitate international sharing of information.

In addition to a printed version of the directory, Childwatch International has made it available for online search on the Internet using the World-Wide-Web format. This ensures easy access to the information in a user-friendly way. The World-Wide-Web location for the database is

<http://childhouse.uio.no/childwatch>

The database is also available in a diskette version (Mac or DOS based) for use on personal computers not linked to the Internet.

The results of this survey will be combined with the results of a parallel exercise conducted by Human Rights Internet to survey children's rights information collections among NGOs. Recognising the value of a more detailed record of research initiatives, Childwatch International is now developing -- in co-operation with key institutions in the field of child research -- a world-wide interactive data-base on ongoing child research, based on the experience from the European Survey. The format will be the World-Wide-Web and the questionnaire will be placed on-line for immediate registration and updating.
Methodology
The European Survey used a questionnaire based on the one developed by Human Rights Internet for the Survey of NGOs Information on the Rights of the Child. 700 questionnaires were mailed to academic institutions in Europe in June 1994, asking whether they had any institutes or departments wholly or partly involved in research on child rights related issues. 590 of the institutions were located in Western Europe, the rest in Russia, Central and Eastern Europe. The cover letter asked for the questionnaire to be forwarded to and answered by the institute(s) or department(s) involved with children’s issues. Follow-up mailings were done in August and September 1994.

The questionnaire consisted of four parts, asking for:
- basic information about the institution;
- research interests and activities relating to children's rights;
- handling of information relating to children's rights; and
- technical information on computerised databases.

To make easy reference to the various Convention articles, the questionnaire used the same clustering as developed by the Committee on the Rights of the Child in the Guidelines for Reporting.

Survey Findings
The Directory contains 182 institutions from 30 countries in Europe.

Types of Institutions
Among respondents, 81% defined themselves as Public and 12% as Private Institutions. Asked for further specification, the answers were as follows:

Research Activities
The database covers all research areas indicated in the questionnaire. There are no areas not covered, although only 6 respondents reported research interests in Article 11 - Illicit transfer and non-return and 7 in Article 35 - Sale, trafficking and abduction. The highest reporting was on Article 23 - Disabled children (102 respondents), Article 2 - Non-discrimination (90 respondents) and Article 29 - Aims of education (87 respondents). For further details, see Table 1 for the entire distribution of responses.

Ongoing Projects
44% of the respondents provided titles of ongoing research projects related to the Convention on the Rights of the Child. The projects relate to a wide variety of issues concerning children’s rights. For a full list of projects, see the Index of Ongoing Research Projects at the end of the Directory.
Library/Documentation Activities
69% of the respondents reported that they have a collection on children or children's rights.

Areas covered by Information Collections
The database covers all subject areas related to the Convention as indicated in the questionnaire. There are no areas not covered, although only 10 respondents reported Article 11 - Illicit transfer and non-return as covered by their information collections. The highest reporting occurred on Article 1 - Definition of the child (77 respondents), Article 28 - Education (76 respondents) and Article 29 - Aims of education (74 respondents). For further details, see table 2 for the entire distribution of responses.

Services offered
When asked about the kind of services their documentation centre/library offers, the following answers were provided:

- 47% Documentation centre open to public
- 34% Loans of documents
- 35% Database searches in-house
- 25% Database searches on-line
- 25% Bibliographic abstracts
- 44% Photocopying
- 22% Selective dissemination of information
- 35% Inter-library loans
- 27% Research

Computerized databases
49% of the respondents reported that their documentation centre or library is computerized. 20% of them have on-line access to their databases.

The Directory of European Research and Documentation Institutions on Children’s Rights

The Directory of European Research and Documentation Institutions on Children’s Rights describes the major research and documentation activities on children's rights of 182 institutions based in 30 European countries, along with pertinent data on their computerized information activities. The information contained in the profiles was provided by the institutions themselves. All responsibility for this information thus remains with the institutions responding to the survey. The objective of this publication is to make available, rather than evaluate, the data thus provided.

Update

Although the data contained in this Directory has been repeatedly checked, errors and omissions may still exist. All modifications and additions should be entered on the questionnaire included in the volume and returned to the address provided. This sample questionnaire is included to encourage users to complement and update the information provided, and to offer those organizations which are not included the chance to be considered for future editions. An evaluation form is also included to help improve future editions of the Directory. Users are invited to complete this form and return it to the address provided.

Sections of the Directory

Profiles

The profiles are arranged alphabetically by country and by the English name of the institution. A reference code assigned to each profile is listed above the English name. This code is used in the indexes to refer to the institution, rather than the page number on which the profile is found.

Each profile contains four types of information about the institution: a) identification and contact fields; b) the research activities of the institution in the area of children’s rights; c) the library/documentation activities of the institution in the area of children's rights; d) information on the computerized databases of the institution.

Identification fields

Practical information on each institution is provided, including the official name and translation; acronym when it exists; address; telephone, telex, cable, telefax and E-mail numbers; contact name, as well as type of organization and scope of activities.

Research activities fields

Information is provided on the titles of on-going research projects and on research topics linked to the Articles of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as details on topics of special interest.

Information/Documentation activities fields

Details are provided on the size, languages and type of holdings of the collection, as well as subject areas linked to the Articles of the Convention of the Rights of the Child.

Computerized databases fields

When applicable, details on the computerized databases of the institution are listed, as well as information on access to the databases.

Indexes

The following indexes are included at the end of this publication to facilitate information retrieval:

- an Index of Research Topics
- an Index of On-Going Research Projects
- an Index of Special Interest Topics
- an Index of Documentation Topics
- an Index of Library/Documentation Services
For example, institutions working on child abuse are identified by profile code in the Index of Research Topics under the heading Abuse and Neglect. Users can then refer back to the profiles to locate the institutions corresponding to these codes.

In addition, an alphabetical listing of the English names of the institutions included in the Directory is provided, as well as a similar listing arranged by country in which the institution is located.

The Convention on the Rights of the Child

The Convention on the Rights of the Child was adopted by the United Nations on November 20th 1989 and entered into force on September 2nd 1990 after being ratified by 20 States. As of March 15th 1995, 170 countries had either signed the Convention or become States Parties to it by ratification or accession. When ratified by a State, the Convention becomes binding law in it.

The Convention seeks to balance the rights of the child with the rights and duties of parents or others who have responsibilities for child survival, development and protection, and gives the child the right to participate in decisions affecting both the present and the future. The fifty-four articles of the Convention describe the individual rights of any person under 18 to develop his or her full potential, free from hunger and want, neglect, exploitation or other abuses.

The inherent strength of the new Convention lies in its flexibility, its capacity to accommodate the many different approaches of nations in pursuit of a common goal. It has not evaded the sensitive issues, but has found means to adjust to the different cultural, religious and other values which address universal child needs in their own ways.

Main provisions of the Convention

Preamble
The preamble reaffirms the fact that children because of their vulnerability, need special care and protection, and places special emphasis on the primary caring and protective responsibility of the family. It also reaffirms the need for legal and other protection of the child before and after birth, the importance of respect for the cultural values of the child's community, and the vital role of international co-operation in securing children's rights.

Definition of a child (article 1)
A child is recognized as a person under 18, unless national laws recognize the age of majority earlier.

Non-discrimination (article 2)
All rights apply to all children without exception. It is the State's obligation to protect children from any form of discrimination and to take positive action to promote their rights.

Best interests of the child (article 3)
All actions concerning the child shall take full account of his or her best interests. The State shall provide the child with adequate care when parents, or others charged with that responsibility, fail to do so.

Implementation of rights (article 4)
The State must do all it can to implement the rights contained in the Convention.

Parental guidance and the child's evolving capacities (article 5)
The State must respect the rights and responsibilities of parents and the extended family to provide guidance for the child which is appropriate to her or his evolving capacities.

Survival and development (article 6)
Every child has the inherent right to life, and the State has an obligation to ensure the child's survival and development.

Name and nationality (article 7)
The child has the right to a name at birth. The child has also the right to acquire a nationality and, as far as possible, to know his or her parents and be cared for by them.

Preservation of identity (article 8)
The State has an obligation to protect, and if necessary re-establish, basic aspects of the child's identity (including name, nationality and family ties).
Separation from parents (article 9)
The child has a right to live with his or her parents unless this is deemed incompatible with the child's best interests. The child also has the right to maintain contacts with both parents if separated from one or both.

Family reunification (article 10)
Children and their parents have the right to leave any country and to enter their own for purposes of reunion or the maintenance of the child-parent relationship.

Illicit transfer and non-return (article 11)
The State has an obligation to prevent and remedy the kidnapping or retention of children abroad by a parent or third party.

The child's opinion (article 12)
The child has the right to express his or her opinion freely and to have that opinion taken into account in any matter or procedure affecting the child.

Freedom of expression (article 13)
The child has the right to express his or her views, obtain information, make ideas or information known, regardless of frontiers.

Freedom of thought, conscience and religion (article 14)
The State shall respect the child's right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, subject to appropriate parental guidance.

Freedom of association (article 15)
Children have a right to meet with others, and to join or form associations.

Protection of privacy (article 16)
Children have the right to protection from interference with their privacy, family, home and correspondence, and from libel or slander.

Access to appropriate information (article 17)
The State shall ensure that information and materials from a diversity of sources is accessible to children, and it shall encourage the mass media to disseminate information which is of social and cultural benefit to the child, and take steps to protect him or her from harmful materials.

Parental responsibilities (article 18)
Parents have the joint primary responsibility for raising the child, and the State shall support them in this. The State shall provide appropriate assistance to parents in child-raising.

Protection from abuse and neglect (article 19)
The State shall protect the child from all forms of maltreatment by parents or others responsible for the care of the child and establish appropriate social programmes for the prevention of abuse and the treatment of victims.

Protection of a child without family (article 20)
The State is obliged to provide special protection for a child deprived of a family environment and to ensure that appropriate alternative family care or institutional placement is available in such cases. Efforts to meet this obligation shall pay due regard to the child's cultural background.

Adoption (article 21)
In countries where adoption is recognized and/or allowed, it shall only be carried out in the best interests of the child, and then only with the authorization of competent authorities, and with safeguards for the child.

Refugee children (article 22)
Special protection shall be granted to a refugee child or to a child seeking refugee status. It is the State's obligation to co-operate with competent organizations which provide such protection and assistance.
Disabled children (article 23)
A disabled child has the right to special care, education and training to help him or her enjoy a full and decent life in dignity and achieve the greatest degree of self-reliance and social integration possible.

Health and health services (article 24)
The child has a right to the highest standard of health and medical care attainable. States shall place special emphasis on the provision of primary and preventive health care, public health education and the reduction of infant mortality. They shall encourage international co-operation in this regard and strive to see that no child is deprived of access to effective health services.

Periodic review of placement (article 25)
A child placed by the State for reasons of care, protection or treatment is entitled to have that placement evaluated regularly.

Social security (article 26)
The child has the right to benefit from social security including social insurance.

Standard of living (article 27)
Every child has the right to a standard of living adequate for his or her physical, mental, spiritual, moral and social development. Parents have the primary responsibility to ensure that this responsibility can be fulfilled, and is. State responsibility can include material assistance to parents and their children.

Education (article 28)
The child has a right to education, and the State's duty is to ensure that primary education is free and compulsory, to encourage different forms of secondary education accessible to every child and to make higher education available to all on the basis of capacity. School discipline shall be consistent with the child's rights and dignity. The State shall engage in international co-operation to implement this right.

Aims of education (article 29)
Education shall aim at developing the child's personality, talents and mental and physical abilities to the fullest extent. Education shall prepare the child for an active adult life in a free society and foster respect for the child's parents, his or her own cultural identity, language and values, and for the cultural background and values of others.

Children of minorities or indigenous populations (article 30)
Children of minority communities and indigenous populations have the right to enjoy their own culture and to practise their own religion and language.

Leisure, recreation and cultural activities (article 31)
The child has the right to leisure, play and participation in cultural and artistic activities.

Child labour (article 32)
The child has the right to be protected from work that threatens his or her health, education or development. The State shall set minimum ages for employment and regulate working conditions.

Drug abuse (article 33)
Children have the right to protection from the use of narcotic and psychotropic drugs, and from being involved in their production or distribution.

Sexual exploitation (article 34)
The State shall protect children from sexual exploitation and abuse, including prostitution and involvement in pornography.

Sale, trafficking and abduction (article 35)
It is the State's obligation to make every effort to prevent the sale, trafficking and abduction of children.

Other forms of exploitation (article 36)
The child has the right to protection from all forms of exploitation prejudicial to any aspects of the child's welfare not covered in articles 32, 33, 34 and 35.
Torture and deprivation of liberty (article 37)
No child shall be subjected to torture, cruel treatment or punishment, unlawful arrest or deprivation of liberty. Both capital punishment and life imprisonment without the possibility of release are prohibited for offences committed by persons below 18 years. A child who is detained shall have legal and other assistance as well as contact with his or her family.

Armed conflicts (article 38)
State Parties shall take all feasible measures to ensure that children under 15 play no direct part in hostilities. No child below 15 shall be recruited into the armed forces. States shall also ensure the protection and care of children affected by armed conflict as described in relevant international law.

Rehabilitative care (article 39)
The State has an obligation to ensure that child victims of armed conflicts, torture, neglect, maltreatment or exploitation receive appropriate treatment for their recovery and social reintegration.

Administration of juvenile justice (article 40)
A child in conflict with the law has the right to treatment which promotes the child's sense of dignity and worth, takes the child's age into account and aims at his or her reintegration into society. The child is entitled to basic guarantees as well as legal or other assistance for his or her defence.

Respect for higher standards (article 41)
Wherever standards set in applicable national and international law relevant to the rights of the child are higher than those in the Convention, the higher standards shall always apply.

Implementation and entry into force (articles 42 to 54)
The provisions of these articles notably foresee:
- the State's obligation to make the rights contained in the Convention widely known to both adults and children.
- the setting up of a Committee on the Rights of the Child composed of ten experts, which will consider reports that State Parties to the Convention are to submit two years after ratification and every five years thereafter.
- States Parties are to make their reports widely available to the general public.
- The Committee may propose that special studies be undertaken on specific issues relating to the rights of the child, and may make its evaluations known to each State Party concerned as well as to the UN General Assembly.
- To foster the effective implementation of the Convention and to encourage international co-operation, the specialized agencies of the United Nations will be able to attend the meetings of the Committee. Together with any other body recognized as "competent", including NGOs in consultative status with UN agencies, they can submit pertinent information to the Committee and be asked to advise on the optimal implementation of the Convention.
The Directory of European Research and Documentation Institutions on Children's Rights describes 182 institutions based in 30 European countries. It contains both analytical and descriptive sections, and provides an insight into European research and documentation activities in the field of children's rights. The institute profiles describe the major research and documentation activities of the institutions. Finally, several indexes are included to facilitate information retrieval.

The Directory aims to provide those working with and for children with a useful source, and to encourage and facilitate communication and information sharing between institutions and individuals active in improving the situation of children's rights.
