

Overview of IDA aid to education 1999-2007

IDA aid to education

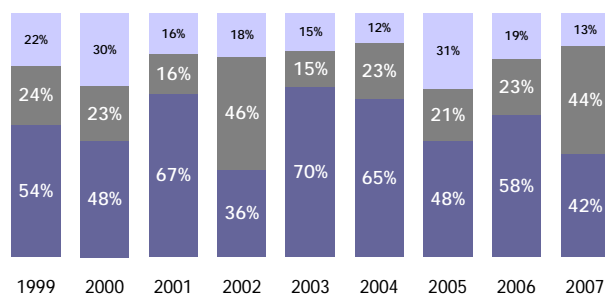

► Total aid to education, change since Dakar (commitments)

Commitments:

Total aid to education increased by 7,1% a year.

► Distribution of aid to education by levels (commitments)

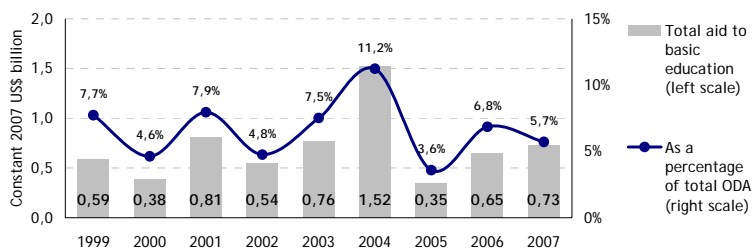

Commitments:

In 2007, basic education received 42 % of IDA aid to education.

Basic education

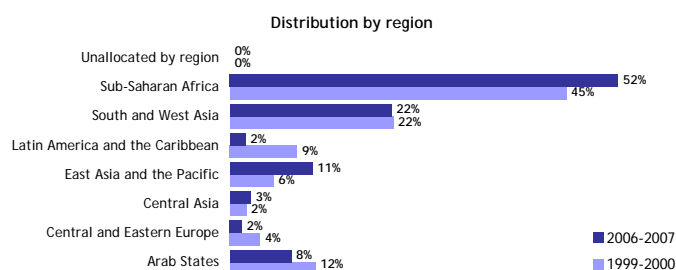

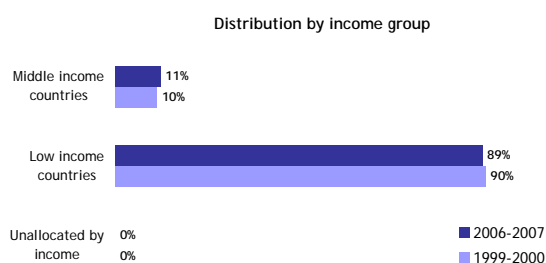

► Total aid to basic education, change since Dakar (commitments)

Commitments:

Total aid to basic education increased by 2,4% a year.

► Distribution of aid to basic education by income groups and regions (commitments)

In 2006 and 2007, low income countries received 89% of IDA aid to basic education.

The share of these countries in IDA aid to basic education decreased by 1 percentage points since Dakar.

In 2006 and 2007, Sub-Saharan Africa and South and West Asia countries received respectively 52% and 22% of IDA aid to basic education.

Top 10 recipient countries of aid to basic education

Commitments

	Total aid to basic education 2006-2007 average (2007 constant US$ million)	As a percentage of IDA aid to basic education
Democratic Rep. of the Congo	78	11,3%
Ethiopia	62	9,0%
Pakistan	56	8,2%
Indonesia	53	7,6%
Sudan	40	5,9%
Nepal	32	4,6%
Bangladesh	30	4,3%
Kenya	28	4,0%
India	26	3,7%
Nigeria	24	3,4%

About the data

These analyses were developed by the Education for All Global Monitoring Report team in April 2009. They are based on data from the OECD-DAC On-line Database on Annual Aggregates and the Creditor Reporting System (CRS) On-line Database on Aid Activities. All data are expressed in Constant 2007 US$.

Difference between commitments and disbursements:

- Commitment is a firm obligation by a donor to provide specified assistance to a country or multilateral organization.
- Disbursements record the actual international transfer of financial resources or of goods or services valued by the donor.
- As the aid committed in a given year can be disbursed later, sometimes over several years, the annual aid figures based on commitments are not comparable to those based on disbursements.