12 Media Literacy Activities for Students At Home During COVID-19 School Closures
School closures have been extended due to the continued spread of COVID-19. However, independent learning can be done at home before the new semester begins.

The Korean Association of Teachers of Media literacy (KATOM) has created 12 activities that will help you enhance media literacy skills. Students can do them at home with their parents or on their own. Here we go!
12 Media Literacy Activities During COVID-19 School Closures

- THINK about your feelings and how they have changed since the COVID-19 outbreak, and share it with your family.

- EXPRESS YOURSELF by writing a journal, drawing cartoons or making videos on the social phenomena related to COVID-19.

- SEARCH online for articles about people who work for public health, and share it on social media or leave a supportive comment.

- CREATE a public service advertisement expressing messages like “STOP PANIC BUYING”, “FOLLOW PUBLIC HEALTH ADVICE” and “NO HATE SPEECH” etc.

Thank you.
12 Media Literacy Activities During COVID-19 School Closures

- FACT-CHECK the news on COVID-19.
- COMPARE and find the sources of what YouTubers say about COVID-19.

- FIND the sources of information related to public health, and read the piece of information CRITICALLY.
- COMPARE different perspectives of the news on COVID-19 public health policies and think about why.
12 Media Literacy Activities During COVID-19 School Closures

- READ different international news reports and compare how other countries have dealt with COVID-19.
- COLLECT information on discrimination or hate cases, and discuss how they can be improved.

- EXPLORE the statistics, infographics and images on the COVID-19 online, and choose the most effective uses of visualization.
- READ books or watch films and animations about epidemics. Compare the situations to the current one.

Ministry of Education
KATOMI
Korean Association of Teachers of Media literacy
These are the 12 media literacy activities you can try at home during the extended COVID-19 school closures.

We hope that we will get over this crisis soon and get back to peaceful day-to-day life.

Ministry of Education

www.katom.me