John Geoghegan

Director of the World Scout Foundation

Following a career with the International Red Cross and Red Crescent in which, following five years as Director of International Red Cross and Red Crescent Youth, Mr Geoghegan later led the European Red Cross/Red Crescent Operations in Europe - during the Balkan conflict, the break-up of the Soviet Union and the aftermath of the Chernobyl disaster, and which later brought him to Vietnam dealing with disaster relief, rehabilitation and long term effects of the Vietnam War, including establishing a Vietnam/American Red Cross response to the effects of Agent Orange. John joined the World Scout Foundation in September 2001. With the WSF, where he works with the Honorary Chairman HM the King of Sweden and a board of global leaders, he has helped more young people throughout the world to do amazing things in their communities through project support, in particular through an initiative with the Custodian of the Two Holy Mosques, His Majesty the King of Saudi Arabia, called “Messengers of Peace” which to date has inspired 25 million scouts in 120 countries to work for peace and harmony in their local communities and beyond. This programme sets “Dialogue” as a central skill for these young leaders to use in their work, drawing heavily from the approaches developed by the National Dialogue in Saudi Arabia. It has resulted in over 760 million hours of community service logged online since 2013. Mr Geoghegan’s experience with intercultural and interfaith dialogue started in 1976 when, as a South of Ireland Catholic Scout, he worked with Northern Ireland Protestant Scouts and started an initiative to bring scouts from two sides of the religious divide in Belfast together in a cross-border programme.
WORKSHOP TRAINERS
Ronni Abergel

Denmark

The Human Library Workshop

Ronni Abergel is a 43-year old journalist from Denmark. He got a diploma in Marketing and Communication at the Copenhagen Business College and completed a Bachelor in Journalism at the Syddansk University in 2012. Mr Abergel is the founder and director of the Human Library Organization in 2000 in Denmark. He is used to facilitating human libraries and animating TED talks on the subject.

Growing up in Copenhagen, Mr Abergel said he got involved with the wrong crowd. He would get into fights both in school and on the streets. In 1989, when he was 15, he decided to escape and he moved to New Milford, Connecticut for a year as a foreign exchange student. He returned to Copenhagen in 1990 feeling a greater respect for those different than him. After finishing school in 1993, he and his friends started Stop The Violence, an organization that raised violence awareness. His work eventually led him to create the Human Library Organization.

Mr Abergel considers that, “if we could make people sit down with a group attached to a certain stigma they don’t like or even know about for that matter, we could diminish violence».

Andreas TZEKAS

Greece

Refugees and Migration

Currently studying Finance in Thessaloniki, Greece. As a student, he went through many interesting experiences and met great people by getting involved in different initiatives and projects. He organized the first TEDx event in his university, became an intern at European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN), took active part at TEDxCERN and represented Greek National Youth Council at the European Youth Forum. One of the biggest experiences so far in his life have been offered by Scouting, the movement that he joined since he was 6. After refugee crises reached Greece, he engaged in mitigation activities through his National Scout Association around the country. He spent 3 days on Greek island of Kos offering support to both refugee adults and children and produced a short video showcasing his unforgettable experience. His support continued in refugees’ camp from his hometown Larisa and Thessaloniki by helping authorities delivering food and other firsthand necessities for people in need.
