Taking note of the above, the participants of the second edition of the Biennale:

1. Encourage the organisers, for the holding of future editions of the Biennale, to consider the benefits of this innovative hybrid format in terms of the opportunity for a more widespread participation and thus appropriation of this event, the objective of which is to strengthen the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the peace and sustainable development of Africa;

2. Welcome the official launch, during this 2021 edition, of the Alliance of Partners for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence in Africa, as a necessary instrument for the strengthening of the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence, as well as for ensuring the sustainability and transformative impact of the Biennale of Luanda Initiative;

3. Encourage academic institutions and professional associations, youth and women’s organisations and associations, international organisations, the private sector, civil society, philanthropists and influential personalities within the continent and the Diaspora to join the Alliance of Partners for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence in Africa;

4. Welcome the strengthening of cooperation between the Government of Angola, the African Union Commission and UNESCO and call upon them to take the necessary steps, including within the framework of the Steering Committee of the Biennale, for the establishment of a permanent Secretariat to ensure the follow-up of the implementation of the Roadmap of this second edition of the Biennale;

5. Welcome the full participation and involvement of the Regional Economic Communities throughout the four days of the conference, as reflected in the Joint Declaration of the High Representatives of the Regional Economic Communities on the Culture of Peace and Non-Violence (Annex 1); declaration by which the RECs acknowledge their role, responsibility and commitment in the process of perpetuating the culture of peace and non-violence in Africa, which also includes the signing of the Agreement between the Government of Angola, ECCAS and UNESCO (Annex 2);

6. Request the support of the governments of African Member States and countries of the African Diaspora to contribute, from one edition to the next, to the sustainability of the Biennale of Luanda initiative, including by taking appropriate measures and implementing activities and projects for the culture of peace and non-violence at national and local levels to be progressively included in the roadmap;

7. Express their gratitude to their Excellencies, the Presidents, Vice-Presidents and Ministers who took part in the Opening Ceremony of the Biennale in Luanda;

8. Welcome the major role played by His Excellency, Mr. João Manuel Gonçalves Lourenço, President of the Republic of Angola, who once again hosted the event and mobilised the Heads of State and Government for this purpose, and request his support for the future editions of the Biennale of Luanda.

This 2nd edition of the Biennale was structured around four main focuses: the Intergenerational Dialogue of Leaders and Youth; the four Thematic and Good Practice Forums, the launch of the Alliance of Partners and the Festival of Cultures. The participants appreciate the holding of restricted access online partnership sessions, which will take place 01 to 02 December. These restricted online sessions aim to finetune the 4 flagship initiatives for the African continent and will be chaired by representatives of the Regional Economic Communities. The flagship initiatives, together with the projects and events planned by the partners, will be part of the Roadmap 2021-2023.

INTERGENERATIONAL DIALOGUE OF LEADERS AND YOUTH
With a view to once again giving a voice to young people and their organisations, the second edition of the Biennale opened on 27 November with an Intergenerational Dialogue on the theme: Cultural and Heritage Diversity of Africa and its Diasporas: Source of Conflict or Ground for Peace?
The objective of this intergenerational dialogue was to allow participants to: (i) brainstorm on how to promote, in African states and African Diaspora communities, and with the involvement of youth and their organisations, the respect of cultural and heritage diversity for a peaceful coexistence of the multiple cultural identities of Africa; (ii) and to highlight activities testifying to the daily commitment of young people and their organisations towards intercultural and interreligious dialogue for living together and in peace.
The participants were pleased that the dialogue provided an opportunity for the youth representatives to present a draft programme entitled "Youth committed to the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence". The objective of this programme is to mobilise young people and their organisations within the continent and its Diaspora to contribute to the implementation of the roadmap of the second edition of the Biennale and to strengthen the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence in the medium and long term (Annex 3).

THEMATIC AND BEST PRACTICE FORUMS
In its role as a global cooperation platform for the elaboration of strategies for the prevention of violence and conflicts and the dissemination of initiatives and good practices, with a view to building sustainable peace and development in Africa, the 2nd edition of the Biennale was structured along four thematic and good practice forums, namely:
(i) The contribution of arts, culture and heritage to sustainable peace;
(ii) Engaging Young People as Actors of Social Transformations for Conflict Prevention and Sustainable Development
(iii) Africa and its diasporas in the face of conflict, crises and inequality;
(iv) Harnessing the potential of the oceans for sustainable development and peace.

Bringing together a variety of committed actors and partners, these forums highlighted solutions and good practices that have proven successful at local, national and regional levels. The participants thank the speakers who shared their experiences. Gathered in a catalogue of good practices, these experiences have inspired the drafting of the four Flagship Initiatives. Partners and stakeholders are invited to support the implementation of the Flagship Initiatives throughout the period 2021-2023.

Contribution of Arts, Culture and Heritage to Sustainable Peace
This theme echoes, celebrates and accompanies the theme of the Year 2021 of the African Union: “Arts, culture and heritage: Levers for building the Africa we want.” Referring to Aspiration 5 of the Agenda 2063 and to the 2021 International Year of the Creative Economy for Sustainable Development, this forum explored recent knowledge on how arts and heritage interact with conflict, reconciliation and efforts to build more peaceful societies. It also highlighted the ways in which artists, creatives and heritage practitioners contribute to preventing, mitigating and supporting recovery from the effects of conflict, inequality and the COVID-19 pandemic.

Engaging young people as actors of social transformation for conflict prevention and sustainable development
This thematic forum contributed to the implementation of UNESCO’s Operational Strategy on Youth, the African Youth Charter, the African Union Roadmap on Harnessing the Demographic Dividend through Investments in Youth, and Aspiration 4 of Agenda 2063. It showed that there is an alternative narrative to the one that portrays young people as perpetrators or victims of violence. This alternative narrative highlights the lived experiences and daily efforts of young women and men committed as actors of social transformation for conflict prevention and sustainable development, through various activities and projects at community, national, regional and continental levels. It also echoes Security Council resolutions 2250, 2419 and 2535 on youth, peace and security and the UN Youth Strategy.

Africa and its diasporas in the face of conflicts, crises and inequality
Despite enormous assets that could create the base for a sustainable culture of peace and prosperity, Africa still maintains a persistent vicious cycle of insecurity, social inequality and natural and human disasters. This forum therefore explored and presented the efforts and catalyst initiatives that can fight against inequalities and violence, reduce poverty and prevent conflicts by exploiting the strong strategic potential (in terms of demography and natural resources) of Africa in building sustainable peace and development. This forum builds on the implementation of SDG 1 and Aspiration number 1 of Agenda 2063.

Harnessing the Potential of Oceans for Sustainable Development and Peace
Africa’s coastal and ocean waters occupy three times its land mass and are becoming increasingly relevant as a source of economic growth and employment in the continent. In connection with the African Decade of Seas and Oceans (2015-2025) and the United Nations Decade of Ocean Science for Sustainable Development (2021-2030), this fourth forum offered the opportunity to mobilise stakeholders to ensure that Africa harnesses ocean science and research to make the best use of its blue economy potential. It also presented an opportunity to take stock of the progress made in the implementation of the UNESCO Convention on the Protection of the Underwater Cultural Heritage (2001), and to discuss the Strategy for Blue Economy in Africa.

The participants thank all the actors and partners represented at these Thematic and Good Practice Forums for their strong commitment, which allowed the definition of four flagship initiatives for the construction of a culture of peace on the African continent.

SCIENTIFIC COMMITTEE
Created in the framework of the Biennale of Luanda to play an advisory role, to offer advice on the programme of the Biennale and to develop academic reflection for the promotion of the culture of peace in Africa, the Scientific Committee participated in a session on the theme "African identities, cultures and science for a culture of peace". This was an opportunity for the Scientific Committee to present to the participants the draft publication entitled "Identities, Cultures, Science and Shared Values for an African Epistemology on Peace". This publication, which will be introduced in the roadmap of the Biennale, aims to rethink the notion of peace in Africa, to reflect on African citizenship and the construction of Africanity as well as to discuss the strategic role of education systems in the African cultural renaissance.

FESTIVAL OF CULTURES

The Festival of Cultures gave the opportunity to celebrate the cultural diversity of Africa and other parts of the world, promoting interaction between cultures, artists and the public. The Festival included a live part in Luanda with a dance, fashion, and music performance on 27 November, the opening of the ResiliArt Angola exhibition - organised by the Biennale partner American Schools of Angola, on 28 November, and the final concert on 30 November. The embassies of the 9 countries present in Luanda, as well as the Portuguese, German and Brazilian cultural centres and the Alliance française played a very active role in organising exhibitions, theatre, dance and music performances on the themes of the Biennale. Angola was physically represented by a national pavilion bringing together the various forms of Angolan culture between tradition and modernity, with a presentation of national projects to be included in the roadmap.

During the Biennale, an original musical creation was presented, a pan-African song, produced within the framework of the cultural agenda of the President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in his capacity as current President of the African Union, with the participation of great artists from the continent under the direction of Lokwa Kanza and Souzy Kaseya.

The Festival was broadcast on the Biennale website as part of the “Biennale TV”. 43 countries’ virtual pavilions were hosted on the Biennale web site, featuring an incredible richness and diversity of cultural expressions and bringing together artists and musical groups of African inspiration.

CLOSING / CONCLUSION

The closing ceremony, on 30 November, was marked by the adoption of a Declaration of the Regional Economic Communities and the official launch of the Alliance of Partners for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence in Africa.

In order to ensure continuity and sustainability of the Alliance of Partners, we invite UNESCO to continue to assist and accompany the leadership of the Regional Economic Communities (RECs), in the framework of a permanent Secretariat with a dedicated team, until the third edition of the Biennale of Luanda in 2023.

The participants of the second edition of the Biennale would like to thank all the official sponsors who made this important event possible, namely:

- Ente Nazionale Idrocarburi (ENI)
- American Schools of Angola (ASA)
- BNI (Banco Nacional de Investimento)

As well as local sponsors: Porto de Luanda, Namibe and Soyo, Regulatory Agency of Load Certification and Logistics of Angola (ARCCLA), National Institute of Road Transport (INTR), Collective and Urban Transport of Luanda (TCUL) and Special Economic Zone (ZEE).
INTRODUCTION

The overall objective of the Luanda Biennale is to strengthen the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence through the prevention of violence and the resolution of conflicts, by encouraging cultural exchanges in Africa, dialogue between generations and the promotion of gender equality. A space for reflection and dissemination of artistic works, ideas and good practices related to the culture of peace, the Luanda Biennale brings together representatives of governments, civil society, the artistic and scientific community and international organisations.

Such an ambition, to be achieved, cannot do without the contribution of youth.
Africa is a young continent, and in 2020, out of a population of 1.3 billion, 60% of its population will already be young. While the rest of the world will gradually age, Africa will continue to get younger. Young people and their organisations are, in fact, a resource for the peace and development of the continent.

The recognition of this importance of youth has led to their involvement in the first edition of the Luanda Biennale in 2019.

For the second edition of the Luanda Biennale in 2021, which is held in a hybrid format (partly face-to-face and partly virtual), the present Programme "Youth committed to the Pan-African Movement for the Culture of Peace and Non-Violence" reiterates the involvement of young people, under the supervision of UNESCO, the AUC, ICESCO and the Government of the Republic of Angola.

OVERALL OBJECTIVE

Led by young people themselves, with the support of UNESCO, the AUC, ICESCO and the Government of the Republic of Angola, this programme therefore aims to mobilise and federate young people and youth organisations in the continent and in the diasporas to contribute to the medium- and long-term strengthening of the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

1) Continue and strengthen the implementation of the African Youth Pledge for the Culture of Peace (2019), adopted at the end of the Youth Forum of the 1st edition of the Luanda Biennale of Luanda;
2) Contribute to the implementation of the Roadmap 2021-2023 which will be adopted at the end of the second edition of the Biennale of Luanda;
3) To ensure that the aspirations of young women and men are systematically taken into account and that youth organisations contribute to peace and development.

The said Programme, which will thus contribute to the implementation of the 2030 and 2063 Agendas, is made up of three axes.

AXIS I - PREPARATIONS FOR ACTIVITIES INCLUDED IN THE BIENNIAL PROGRAMME (07 June - 22 November 2021)

These preparations were initiated with the creation, on 7 June 2021, of an ad hoc Youth Committee.

The said committee had the mission to contribute, in general, to the preparations of the second edition of the Luanda Biennial, and in particular, by participating in the organisation of the Intergenerational Dialogue and precisely (i) by having organised and implemented the selection of the 118 young people and their online participation not only in the Dialogue, but also to the different thematic and good practice forums on the agenda of the Biennial, to the partnership sessions and (ii) by contributing, with the support of their respective organisations and networks in their countries, to the mobilisation and online participation of other young people as well.

The ad hoc youth committee was composed of 14 young people from 12 African countries and was supported by another 04 young people who, based on their proven experience and membership of well-established youth organisations and networks, have contributed and are contributing to the mobilisation and engagement of their peers before, during and after the second edition of the Biennale.

The 118 young people who were selected are nationals of 49 African countries and 14 countries of the Diaspora. Of these selected young people, 10 have been selected to participate in the Biennale's activities in person and, as such, to be the spokespersons for all the others.

AXIS II - PARTICIPATION IN ACTIVITIES INCLUDED IN THE BIENNIAL PROGRAMME (27 November - 02 December 2021)

1) Intergenerational Dialogue

On the theme Cultural and Heritage Diversity of Africa and its Diasporas: Source of Conflict or Ground for Peace, the dialogue, which takes place today, 27 November, sees the direct participation of 10 young people in person; and online of 112 young people representing 49 African countries and 13 countries of the Diaspora.

2) Thematic and best practice forums

Of the 118 young people selected, 28 will participate directly online in the 4 thematic and good practice forums, and as such will represent all the others by reporting on the contributions of the different thematic groups formed by the young people for this purpose.

1) Partnership Sessions

On behalf of all 118 selected young people, 07 of them will also participate virtually in the four partnership sessions and thus contribute to the development of the Flagship Initiatives which, among others, will constitute and form part of the Roadmap 2021-2023.

The work of the young people, following the Intergenerational Dialogue, the Thematic Forums and the partnership sessions, led to the adoption of positioning statements that will provide the framework for designing, implementing and contributing to joint projects.

Building on the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence, which we will help to build and strengthen:

1) Theme 1 The contribution of arts, culture and heritage to sustainable peace

Positioning Statement: We commit to support and encourage the promotion and preservation of African arts and cultural heritage in participating countries, through the use of social media and all other possible avenues
2) Theme 2 Engaging youth as actors of social transformation for conflict prevention and sustainable development

Positioning Statement: Inspired by the legacy of Kofi Annan that "Without progress there is no peace and without peace there is no progress", we commit to using education and youth empowerment as vehicles to promote a culture of peace and non-violence and to ensure the sustainable development of Africa in order to build a bridge in conflict prevention through transformative socio-economic practices.

3) Theme 3 Africa and its Diasporas in the face of conflict, crisis and inequality

Positioning Statement: We commit to advocate, in our countries, for the inclusion of vulnerable young people living with disabilities and marginalized, the harmonization of the lifestyle of new generations with the principles of endogenous values of living together, the promotion and vulgarization of all relevant international normative instruments relating to women’s rights.

4) Theme 4 Harnessing the potential of the oceans for sustainable development and peace

Positioning Statement: We commit to contribute to the strengthening of governance, protection and sustainable management of the oceans in developing and underdeveloped countries, as well as in small islands, in order to ensure an equitable distribution and sharing of ocean resources, based on popular awareness and education programmes, state-of-the-art scientific research policies.

1) Establish local and national movements for a culture of peace and non-violence to strengthen the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence

To contribute to the overall objective of the Luanda Biennale to strengthen the Pan-African Movement for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence, in line with the call for the creation of a "Continental and Sustainable Movement for Peace" contained in the "Plan of Action for a Culture of Peace in Africa/Action for Peace", adopted in 2013, at the Pan-African Forum on "Sources and Resources for a Culture of Peace", the youth:

I. Commit and call on youth-led and youth-focused organisations, networks and initiatives to work together to:

- Form youth-led, multi-level pan-African movements for a culture of peace, from the local to the international level, by encouraging networking, complementary and joint collaboration and knowledge sharing between organisations.

- Promote the creation and expansion of existing environments and spaces where Pan-African youth can live and embrace their diverse cultural heritages, thereby contributing to building and strengthening a transformative Pan-African outlook.
- Facilitate and enhance knowledge sharing, interaction and cooperation between institutions (especially universities/higher education institutions), governments and youth-led organisations based in Africa and elsewhere towards the realisation of regional and global agendas for peace, non-violence and sustainability in the 6 regions of Africa.

II. Engage potential partners and stakeholders to work together to

- Advocate for the accountability, continued commitment and involvement of civil society, governments and the private sector in maintaining and supporting good practice in the 5 main regions of the continent and its diaspora.

- Establish a permanent youth platform that strengthens intercultural and inter-religious dialogue between young people from the six African regions and contributes to the entrenchment of peaceful co-existence and common citizenship.

- Strengthen the capacity of Pan-African youth to promote the culture of peace, identify and support youth initiatives and best practices that work towards the sustainable implementation, individually and collectively, of the concepts of the culture of peace, raise awareness on the importance of promoting a culture of peace and mutual respect in the six African regions.

2) Continue to develop concrete projects and initiatives at local, national and international level to implement the 2021-2023 roadmap.

As part of their contribution to the Roadmap 2021-2023, young people also commit themselves to implementing, through concrete projects and activities, the "African Youth Pledge for the Culture of Peace", adopted at the end of the Youth Forum, organised at the 1st edition of the Luanda Biennale (2019), under the general theme "Youth and Culture of Peace".

This commitment, which lists twelve (12) commitments whose implementation (in the short, medium and long term) has been placed under the coordination of the Pan-African Youth Network for the Culture of Peace (PAYNCOP), with the support of UNESCO and the AU.

In addition, the youth would like the following projects to be included in the Roadmap

1) The holding of an "International Conference on the role of youth in culture, as a lever for living together and a factor of economic empowerment of young people"

2) the creation of a "Pan-African Platform for Intergenerational and Interfaith Cultural Dialogue for the Mutual Knowledge of Peoples and Cultures".

Synopsis and objective
The theme ‘The Contribution of Arts, Culture and Heritage to Peace’ echoes, celebrates, and accompanies the African Union Year 2021: ‘Arts, Culture and Heritage: Levers for Building the Africa We Want’. It resonates with Aspiration 5 of Agenda 2063 and with 2021 International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development. It explores recent findings on how the arts, culture and heritage interplay with conflict, reconciliation, and efforts to build more peaceful societies in Africa. It also highlights ways in which artists, creative and heritage practitioners and local communities are contributing to prevent, mitigate and support the recovery from the effects of conflict, inequality and the COVID-19 pandemic and thus contributing to peace.

Culture contributes to sustainable development, integration and peace in many ways: 1) through economic activities such as creative industries (CCIs), sustainable tourism, cultural heritage and more; 2) providing a set of values that shape actions and behaviors of individuals and communities at various jurisdictional levels, and 3) through the physical context and the history of the different forms of tangible and intangible heritage.

This thematic area aims to explore and showcase the contribution of Culture through three subthemes in line with the key areas highlighted by the AU Year.

Through these three-fold subthemes, linked to the theme: “Supporting the Arts, Promoting Culture & Safeguarding Heritage to achieve sustainable peace”, existing and potential partners of UNESCO, the African Union and the Angolan Authorities have the opportunity to unite their forces to support African countries by: 1) responding to the challenges that the continent’s tangible and intangible heritage are facing; 2) fueling cultural and creative economies and its actors - especially women; and 3) promoting pan-Africanism through a positive new narrative for Africa.
This flagship initiative - and the actions taken under it - responds to the concerns raised by the diverse actors and institutions that make up the African arts, culture and heritage sector, answering to their urgent plea to integrate Culture into COVID-19 relief and recovery plans. These initiatives will acknowledge and support the specific nature of cultural and artistic work and the value of cultural and natural heritage. Furthermore, they will encourage innovative practices and help to move towards shared policies that integrate culture into peace-building strategies and programmes.

The arts and culture sector and the creative industries in Africa are among those hit the hardest by the pandemic crisis, a crisis that is cutting off revenues of individuals, businesses, and organizations particularly in the live/performing arts, audio-visual, cinema and visual arts. Furthermore, the ‘forced’ digital transition is creating new challenges as artists find it harder and harder to earn revenue for their online performances and in particular, this is hindering women’s participation in cultural activities.

The AU Year 2021: ‘Arts, Culture and Heritage’ concept note recognises the role of cultural and creative industries (CCIs) in the socio-economic development of the African continent, notably through job creation - especially for young people - and social inclusion, and highlights that the context shaped by the COVID-19 pandemic provides an opportunity to revise the continent’s priorities and contribute to building resilient and inclusive societies inspired by the Ubuntu Philosophy: ‘I am because you are; you are because I am’. The contribution of artists and creatives in curbing the pandemic has been acknowledged throughout Africa. At the same time, paradoxically, the COVID-19 pandemic has exacerbated the weakness and structural shortcomings of the culture and creative sectors and highlighted the precarious and vulnerable working conditions of artists and other culture actors. The culture sector should not be left out the recovery plans, as it is a full-fledged economic sector requiring attention, as well as a sector that contributes with meaning and purpose to face the crisis. For this reason, building on existing achievements or policy frameworks at the regional level to stimulate the cultural and creative economy will be key.

Key outputs of axis 1:

1.1 Support artists, CCI practitioners and institutions in Africa, including investing in TVET (Technical and Vocational Education and Training)

1.2 Promote gender equality and support women in the arts and culture sectors

1.3 Reinforce the professionalization and certification of educational programmes in culture and the arts, including Technical and Vocational Education and Training.
Axis 2: Promoting Culture

Reengaging with history, arts and cultural values to promote a new narrative for Africa

The integration of African cultures and history in school curricula as well as museum education and outreach, serves to create a new narrative for Africa and to promote pan-Africanism, as shown by the UNESCO initiative on teaching the General History of Africa (GHA). To create this new narrative, it is crucial to strengthen the link between culture and education, to build on the digitalization of cultural contents, to provide online access to culture and to promote linguistic diversity. This also calls for revisiting African history and changing the narrative when it comes to the role of women in the history of Africa or sharing new evidence on how African history was written and conceived in thousands of ancient manuscripts written in African languages.

The 2015 UNESCO Recommendation concerning the protection and promotion of museums and collections, their diversity and their role in society, emphasizes that museums are not only important for preservation, research, communication and education, but that they also contribute to social cohesion and are places for debate. In this sense, they are ideal places for reengaging with history, arts and cultural values to promote a new narrative for Africa, at a national, but also a regional and international level. Africa has an incredibly rich heritage and new museums have opened on the continent. However, many of them are still under equipped. If the number of museums worldwide is estimated at 104,000, according to UNESCO’s report on the impact of COVID-19 on museums, less than 1% of them are located in Africa. Furthermore, only 5% of museums in Africa could provide online cultural content during the lockdown due to the digital gap.

Much remains to do, including fostering a wider engagement of the development community towards the cultural sector. The new narrative must also support a stronger voice of Africa within the global policy dialogue, including at the UN level, notably in preparation of the UNESCO World Conference on Cultural Policies (Mondiacult) in September 2022. It is also crucial to foster the ratification and implementation of the Charter for African Renaissance, to stimulate the development and adaptation of cultural policies at different jurisdictional levels.

Key outputs of axis 2:

2.1. Contribute to the integration of the GHA into education

2.2. Deliver projects and support creators and thinkers who provide a fresh look on the history of the continent

2.3. Safeguard and valorize ancient manuscripts

2.4. Support the new generation of museums in Africa

Axis 3: Safeguarding Heritage

Protecting and promoting African cultural and natural heritage
African heritage, in its diverse forms, is playing an important role in fostering resilience as it constitutes a source of identity and cohesion for communities disrupted by socio-economic and environmental changes. Shared heritage is also proving an essential tool for peacebuilding during armed conflict and peace-making processes at the heart of some of the contemporary conflicts in the continent.

Nevertheless, a pressing challenge today is the steady flow of African heritage objects that are illicitly leaving the African continent, and the return of objects long lost. The turmoil caused by ongoing conflicts and the COVID-19 shutdown is making illicit trafficking of archaeological and ethnographic objects from the Sahel, Central Africa and many other parts of the continent thrive. UNESCO has put in place various instruments to fight more effectively against illegal traffic and to facilitate the return and restitution of cultural property to its country of origin. UNESCO will continue to support the efforts of African countries to better train national professionals and to legislate the prevention of the illicit trafficking of cultural property. A top-level commitment to stop the loss of African heritage is urgent along with the evolving discussions and development on the return and restitution of cultural property in line with Agenda 2063 Aspiration 5 and Agenda 2030 objective and target 16.4. The achievement of these agenda and commitments constitutes a significant contribution to a culture of peace.

Natural heritage conservation is a critical contributor to peace. African natural heritage includes some of the most iconic wildlife habitats and landscapes on the planet. Yet, due to the pandemic many of these parks, biosphere reserves and World Heritage sites are closed, income for park management is reduced, local communities and businesses are negatively affected. Reduced funding, restrictions on the operations of conservation agencies, and elevated human threats to nature are new challenges for Africa’s conservation efforts. The protection of natural heritage is key for peacekeeping, as it is intertwined with traditional management systems, traditional knowledge systems, ways of life and cultural identities that are threatened when resources become scarce and thus create political tensions, causing not only environmental issues but also impacting demographic imbalances, forcing migration and displacement and affecting cultural identities. Moreover, in order to reduce the risk of future pandemics it is urgent to give a new thrust in the regulation of unsafe wildlife trade practices, the development of more resilient conservation models and wide-spread approaches that balance the needs of human and natural habitats.

Preventing conflict, reducing risks and building peace through the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in Africa

Intangible cultural heritage, encompassing rituals, practices, oral traditions and traditional knowledge, is fundamental to cultural identity and fostering peaceful, just and inclusive societies based on the respect for human rights – notably as part of the reform of the UN peacebuilding architecture. Through its safeguarding in Africa, intangible cultural heritage can allow communities, states and development actors to pursue culturally relevant pathways towards inclusive participation, peaceful cohabitation, dispute prevention or resolution, and sustainable security and peacebuilding.

Many practices and expressions of intangible cultural heritage in Africa have peacebuilding at their core and can serve to bring communities together around shared cultural values. Intangible heritage conservation enables a sense of common identity and mutual understanding, and it protects cultural rights. Intangible heritage conservation and promotion can also help communities transcend and address differences based on gender, colour, ethnicity, origin or class, including among displaced and marginalized communities.
Safeguarding activities in post-conflict situations can also bring together different parties around a project of reconstruction, promoting reconciliation between and within communities. In addition, sustaining youth employment and employability is key for the prevention of violent extremism. Moreover, by strengthening social cohesion, intangible cultural heritage can contribute to community-based resilience to natural disasters and climate change, supporting communities in their capacity to reduce risk, respond to and recover from various types of emergencies faced by the continent.

1. Protect and promote World heritage in Africa, including the development of nomination files, the removal of sites from the WH in Danger list and capacity building

2. Rethink the role of heritage in the process of strengthening peace and security, using cultural heritage as one of the main mediation tools in conflict prevention and resolution as well as in the post-conflict recovery, and promote the ratification of the 1954 UNESCO Convention and its two Protocols

3. Fight illicit trafficking through 1) capacity building; 2) providing support for return and restitution of cultural objects; and 3) promoting the ratification of the 1970 UNESCO Convention

4. Valorize, safeguard and integrate the contribution of traditional knowledge systems and practices to the conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity, reduction of disaster risk and mitigation of climate change impacts and integrate it into policies and processes as well as education programmes

5. Raise awareness and promote the role of traditional authorities, governance systems and inter-ethnic alliances in conflict prevention and resolution

6. Promote the role of women against violent extremism and as preventive diplomacy

7. Promote the integration of intangible cultural heritage into public programmes and policies in Africa aimed at the restoration of peace, reconciliation between parties and recovery of communities

1 This could be done in the framework of the new Thematic Programme “Heritage for Peace” launched by the Committee for the Protection of cultural property in the event of armed conflict in December 2020 (Decision 15 COM 6 § 5). Priority will be given to South-South cooperation in the African region within the framework of this cross-cutting and multidisciplinary programme, which aims to strengthen the protection of cultural property in both emergency and peacetime situations.

<td>In Africa, the recruitment of young people into terrorist and extremist violence or socio-political violence is partly the result of instrumentalization (religious, communal, or political). This instrumentalization can be attributed to the challenges of finding and/or keeping steady employment, poverty, and the absence of social support. The recruitment strategies of terrorist and extremist groups are presented to young people as solutions to their economic difficulties. However, despite the socio-economic challenges, many African youth do not turn to violence to make their voices heard or to demand inclusion. There are several initiatives &quot;by young African women and men who are dedicating their time, energy and resources to promote various peace and security initiatives at the community, national, regional and continental levels.&quot; Among them, the National Partnership of Children and Youth in Peacebuilding, which uses the arts to promote peace and coexistence, in North Kivu, DRC. In CAR, the Interfaith Platform for Central African Youth (PIJCA) has long been involved in promoting dialogue to end inter-communal violence. As part of the fight against religious-based violent extremism, the Center for Equality and Equity in Nigeria offers online courses for youth (ages 18-29) to engage the promotion of an interfaith dialogue. In Kenya, the Open Governance Institute builds the capacity of youth to participate in budgetary and decision-making processes of local and decentralized governments. In South Africa, the Mandela Institute for Development Studies provides young people with civic education on elections and governance to encourage their greater political participation.</td>

⁶ Article 17 recognizes the "important role of youth in the promotion of peace and non-violence" and calls on States Parties to, inter alia, "strengthen the capacity of youth and youth organizations in peace-building, conflict prevention and conflict resolution through the promotion of intercultural education, education for citizenship, tolerance, human rights, democracy, mutual respect for cultural, ethnic and religious diversity, and the importance of dialogue, cooperation, responsibility, solidarity and international cooperation.

⁷ « [... youth should be actively involved in building sustainable peace and working towards justice and reconciliation, and that the demographic importance of today's youth is an asset that can contribute to sustainable peace and economic prosperity; and call upon "all relevant actors to consider ways to increase the inclusive representation of youth in conflict prevention and resolution, including when negotiating or implementing peace agreements, in order to involve youth and take into account their views as appropriate, recognizing that the marginalization of youth is detrimental to building sustainable peace and countering violent extremism as a precursor to terrorism.

⁸ Adopted, in 2016, in anticipation of the proclamation of 2017 as the Year of Youth, this roadmap identified four thematic pillars, namely: (i) Employment and Entrepreneurship; (ii) Education and Skills Development; (iii) Health and Wellness; and (iv) Youth Rights, Governance and Empowerment.
Axis 2 Results:
2.1 Strengthen the capacity of youth and their organizations to participate in both economic and public governance
2.2 Build policy and legal ecosystems which support economic empowerment and participation of young people

<td>Africa has been experiencing greater levels of economic growth and well-being over the past years; but insecurity, widening inequalities in different aspects of life, natural and human-made disasters still persist in many parts of the continent. As many countries on the continent take an active part in, and benefit from, the globalization of the economies, the modernization of societies and norms, as well as the development and dissemination of the news ICTs, poverty and social injustice continue to affect people. This creates discontent within communities, especially the marginalized groups, and distrust between people and their government institutions, causing significant obstacles for the achievement of the 2030 Agenda. The ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, as well as various impacts of climate change, have also deepened the social divides between the haves and the have-nots. This is partly due to preexisting limitations of institutional and governance frameworks which have hindered the national responses to these crises. According to the Institute for Economics and Peace, by 2050, climate change is estimated to create up to 86 million additional migrants in sub-Saharan Africa. This represents key challenges to peace and development in Africa. In addition, national and ethnic tension, as well as identity politics and exclusionary ideas of citizenship, continue to influence political, economic and social policies in many parts of the continent. A growing number of groups are increasingly discriminating against others because of differences in origin, race, ethnicity, gender and physical abilities. In West Africa, particularly in the Liptako-Gourma area, insecurity, as well as social and economic inequalities, have reached a crisis level. This region’s instability is also due to the multidimensional crisis that Mali has been experiencing since 2012, triggered by various armed groups in the north of the country.</td>

Throughout the developed and developing world, conflict is a constant threat to one’s psychological and physical well-being. Many aspects of war affect women and girls disproportionately. Poor women and their children lose health, housing, education and welfare services as a consequence to conflicts. To reduce these negative outcomes, a greater inclusion and representation of women in post-conflict initiatives can enhance their role in peacemaking and post-conflict reconstruction efforts.

The African Union (AU) advocates for the meaningful participation and leadership of women and their efforts towards the silencing of guns, the enhancement of good governance, democracy, respect for human rights, justice, and the rule of law to promote a peaceful and secure Africa as outlined in Agenda 2063. In recognition of African women who have exceptionally advanced the peace, security and women’s agenda in Africa, the African Union and the United Nations will publish a commemorative book to celebrate the contribution of women in achieving Aspiration 4 of Agenda 2063 and as part of the activities for the 20th anniversary of the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1325 on women, peace and security.

Axis 2: Diaspora and Reduction of Inequalities

Reducing inequalities for sustainable development is a big challenge faced by developing countries. To truly understand how inequalities have evolved, we must first analyze living-standards gaps across different countries and those within a specific country.

The diaspora of developing countries can be a driving force for development for their countries of origin, through investments, innovation, knowledge, and technology transfers. It is part of the 3rd Article of the Protocol on Amendments to the Constitutive Act of the African Union that recognizes the important role to be played by the African Diaspora in the development of the continent and states that the Union "invites and encourages the Diaspora, as an essential part of our continent, to participate fully in the construction of the African Union".

Axis 3: Promote Endogenous Knowledge for Peace Keeping and Peace Building

Enhancing the Positive Contributions of African Culture in Peacebuilding and Development

In Africa, many indigenous peace-building traditions emphasize the importance of social solidarity. The KURUKAN FUGA Charter in West Africa is an example of an Endogenous Governance Mechanism for Conflict Prevention, and the ‘UBUNTU’ philosophy, followed by communities in Eastern, Central and Southern Africa promotes that all humans are interdependent. The UN tradition of peacebuilding has been expanded and adapted to fit the circumstances and demands of post-conflict settings in Africa. According to CODESRIA, the endogenous knowledge of “joking alliances” can be used to leverage building and consolidation of peace.

<td>Society now depends on the ocean more than at any time before. It is a vital source of nourishment, directly supporting the livelihood of about 500 million people, especially in the poorest nations. Ocean economies are among the most rapidly growing and promising in the world, providing benefits to many sectors of great economic value, such as fisheries, transport, biotechnologies, energy production, seabed resources exploration, tourism and many others. Oceans are facing multiple environmental stressors (climate change, marine pollution, ocean acidification) engendered by these human activities and resulting in the loss of marine species and degradation of marine and coastal environments. As reported in the First World Ocean Assessment, we assist to a cycle of decline in the ocean health, with changes and losses in the structure and function of the Ocean that challenge the benefits obtained from marine systems. Over the coming decades, a changing climate, growing global population, and increased environmental stressors will have significant yet highly uncertain impacts on food security and human well fare. Adaptation strategies and science-informed policy responses to global change are urgently needed. This is particularly true for Africa where oceans represent a huge opportunity for (Blue) economic growth and employment. We need to properly tap into, maximize benefits and minimize the challenges that the continent’ coastlines (more than 30,500 km) are currently facing. Indeed, with 38 coastal countries out of 54 African States, and 90% of regional imports and exports conducted by sea, oceans are crucial for the sustainable development of Africa. The opportunities and challenges highlighted above often become a source of tensions and conflict, locally, regionally and geo-politically on ocean governance and security, including piracy, delineation of ocean borders and sharing transboundary resources. This underpins the need to accelerate intra- and inter-regional dialogue on the culture of peace and non-violence on the African continent. The United Nation’s Decade of Ocean Science for Sustainable Development (2021-2030) provides a suitable platform for this flagship, to structure and boost scientific efforts through a global</td>

The Regional Consultative Workshop on the UN Decade of Ocean Science for Sustainable Development for Africa and the Adjacent Island States (27-29 January 2020, Nairobi, Kenya), and the virtual workshop on “Co-designing the Ocean Science we need for Africa” (3 November 2020), offered a crucial opportunity to co-design mission-oriented research strategies and actions in line with the 2030 Agenda and continental and regional initiatives such as the African Union Agenda 2063: ‘The Africa We Want’ and 2050 Africa’s Integrated Maritime Strategy (2050 AIMS).

Capacity development was identified as a priority, in particular the improvement of infrastructure and facilities for research, provision of training for scientific and technical staff, as well as translation of science to policy.

Key outputs of axis 1:

1.4. Established university-based ocean innovation incubator hubs improve quality and quantity of research products in ocean and marine sciences with societal applications

Many sites bearing testimony to important historical events, battles, the slave trade, natural disasters, and revolutions are found on the bottom of oceans, rivers, and lakes. Underwater Cultural Heritage (UCH) can reveal aspects of history that are not yet known or have not been accounted for in written records. As water has been used since the beginning of civilization as a way to connect different worlds, the remains to be found on the seabed are testimony to cultural dialogue and interactions from the beginning of humankind. Conservation and accessibility of Underwater Cultural Heritage sites can generate income: sites can become tourist attractions for those interested in diving and underwater activities. Communities can attain long term benefits through sustainable tourism and cultural industries, and maritime museums can become a source of revenue, inspiration and research as well as a tourism destination.

Axis 3: The Ocean and Climate Resilience in Small Island Developing States (SIDS)

Building climate resilience and adaptation for SIDS

In our efforts towards achieving Agenda 2063, “The Africa We Want” and the 2030 Agenda for SIDS deserve a particular attention. SIDS face many challenges due to their unique geographical, biological and historical legacies, as well as their social and economic characteristics. These challenges include small size, high levels of population displacement, vulnerability to natural and human-made disasters and high exposure to economic fluctuations and geopolitical circumstances hinder the SIDS capacity to implement national development goals.

The context of the United Nations Decade of Ocean Science for Sustainable Development (2021-2030) and the Luanda Biennale for a Culture of Peace, offer the framework to explore the various challenges faced by SIDS, from a social sciences perspective, including through the lens of the UNESCO Declaration on the Ethical Principles in relation to Climate Change (2017). The SAMOA Pathway for Sustainable Development of SIDS and the UNESCO SIDS Action Plan also provides a framework for addressing priority issues for SIDS.

Key outputs of axis 3:
- 1.1. Analysis of ethical principles related to climate change in SIDS
- 1.2. Research, capacity building and knowledge generation on vulnerability to climate change and disaster risk reduction in SIDS
- 1.3. SHOWCASING YOUTH INNOVATION, CREATIVITY AND ENGAGEMENT AS CHANGE MAKERS FOR SIDS
- 1.4. Climate resilience publication in selected African SIDS

JOINT DECLARATION OF HIGH REPRESENTATIVES OF REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMUNITIES ON THE CULTURE OF PEACE AND OF NON-VIOLENCE

We, representatives of Regional Economic Communities (REC), pillars of the African Union (AU);
1. Acknowledging the States of the African continent’s adhesion to the 2063 Agenda of the African Union titled “The Africa We Want” and to the 2030 Agenda of the United Nations;
2. Considering the 558/XXIV Decision, adopted, in 2015, during the 24th session of the African Union Assembly of Heads of State and Government that established the Biennale of Luanda and asked to the African Union Commission (AUC) to act to its organization in consultation with UNESCO and the Government of the Republic of Angola;
3. Considering the 1265 (XXXVIII) Decision adopted, in February 2021, during the 38th session of the African Union (AU) Assembly of Heads of State and Government, through which it “instructs the African Union Commission to work with the Government of Angola to create conditions for the second panafrican Forum for the culture of peace – the Biennale of Luanda.”
4. Considering the major opportunity to celebrate the of the year 2021 for the African Union, “Arts, Culture and Heritage: Levers for Building the Africa We Want” and to extend, throughout this same year, the theme of the year 2020, “Silencing the guns in Africa”; destined to bring African responses to transformations affecting the continent’s economies and societies;
5. Considering the Action Plan in favour of a culture of peace in Africa/Let us act for peace” adopted in March 2013 in Luanda (Angola), during the panafrican Forum “Sources and resources for a culture of peace”;
6. Considering that, among other things, the absence of and institutional, organizational inclusive of partnership and of formal governance, well defined and invariable, clarifying and precising the participants’ roles in the creation of said projects, programs and resolutions could justify the lack of socioeconomic impacts of different regional programs to establish and maintain peace and security at the heart of different regional spaces of the African Union;
7. Considering the 2020 global report on oceanic sciences and the Decision of the United Nations Organization that proclaimed the years 2021-2030 the Decade of Oceanic Sciences at the service of sustainable development;
8. Considering the Presidential Decree 164/20 of November 16, 2020, through which the President of the Republic of Angola took dispositions for the establishment of conditions for the realisation of this second edition of the Biennale of Luanda in cooperation with UNESCO and the African Union, particularly through the creation of a multisectoral Commission and a national Committee of gestion of the Biennale.
9. Taking into account the goals and objectives of the “Operational Strategy of UNESCO for Priority Africa (2014-2021)”, destined to bring African responses to transformations that affect economies and societies of the continent;
10. Anxious to act to the daily and sustainable, individual and collective appropriation and establishment, on the continent, of the concept of culture of peace that consists in “values, attitudes and behaviours that reflect and inspire social interaction and sharing based on the principles of freedom, justice and democracy, all human rights, tolerance and solidarity, that reject violence and endeavour to prevent conflicts by tackling their root causes to solve problems through dialogue and negotiation and that guarantee the full exercise of all rights and the means to participate fully in the development process of their society”

Therefore,

11. Take cognizance of the adhesion of the Commission of ECCAS to the Biennale of Luanda’s Committee of organization, through the Agreement Protocol signed between the Commission of ECCAS, the Angolan Government and UNESCO;

12. Also take cognizance of the role, responsibility, and duty to commit of the Regional Economic Communities (REC) in the process of perpetuation of the culture of peace and of non-violence as well as the implementation of projects, programs, and resolutions to “Silence the guns in Africa” by 2030 and to bring African responses to transformations affecting the continent’s economies and societies;

13. Ask the steering Committee of the Biennale of Luanda to welcome the Rec as members, to facilitate their implication in the establishment of action plans of future editions of the Biennale of the culture of peace and of non-violence;

14. Salute the choice of retained themes for this second edition of the Biennale of Luanda and note the emergency to establish synergies and a common action frame to exploit the potential of blue and green economies and to fully make profit of the immeasurable potential the sector offers us to realize the integrality of the program of sustainable development;

15. Convene of the necessity to establish a sustainable political regional dialogue between the African Union, UNESCO, the Government of Angola, and the REC to engage in the best delays, to prepare the format of the following editions;

- Que la insuficiencia de impactos socioeconómicos de los diferentes programas regionales para establecer y mantener la paz y la seguridad al seno de diferentes espacios regionales de la Unión Africana podría ser justificada entre otros por la ausencia de un esquema institucional, organizacional inclusivo de cooperación y de gobernanza concisa, bien definida e inmutable, que clarifique y aclare los papeles de los participantes en la implementación de la mayoría de estos proyectos, programas y resoluciones;

- Teniendo en cuenta las metas y los objetivos de la “Estrategia operacional de la UNESCO para la Prioridad África (2014-2021)”, destinada a llevar respuestas africanas a las transformaciones que afectan las economías y sociedades del continente;
Preocupado por actuar en favor de la apropiación y la implementación individuales y colectivas diarias y sostenibles, en el continente, del concepto de cultura de la paz que consiste “en valores, actitudes y conductas que plasman y suscitan interacciones e intercambios sociales basados en los principios de libertad, Justicia y democracia, derechos humanos, la tolerancia y solidaridad. En definitiva, principios que rechazan la violencia y procuran prevenir los conflictos mediante el diálogo y la negociación y que garantizan el pleno ejercicio de todos los derechos y proporcionan los medios para participar plenamente en el proceso de desarrollo de su sociedad.”

En consecuencia,

DECLARAÇÃO CONJUNTA DOS ALTOS REPRESENTANTES
DAS COMUNIDADES ECONÔMICAS REGIONAIS
SOBRE A CULTURA DA PAZ E DA NÃO-VIOLÊNCIA

Nós, os representantes das Comunidades Económicas Regionais (CERs), pilares da União Africana (UA);

Flagship Initiative IV

Harnessing the potential of the oceans for sustainable development and peace
| IOC / African Group | Institutional capacity building in ocean sciences and coastal vulnerability in central Africa | (below, Final Report 2019, page 101) We request the support of the African Union for the development of a continental and pan-African program on coastal vulnerability in Africa, in the context of Agenda 2063 and, in particular, the "African Union Integrated Maritime Strategy for 2050", the "African Decade for the African Seas and Oceans (2015-2025)" and the "African Charter on Maritime Safety and Security and Development in Africa"; We solicit the support of other regional entities, the United Nations system, other multilateral development partners and the governments of the countries concerned in Central Africa, for the development and implementation of the subregional framework program; Given the complexity of the confluence area represented by the coastline and UNESCO’s intersectoral and multidisciplinary mandate, we invite UNESCO, including the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission, to 2022-2023 | Central African Region (Angola, Cameroon, Congo, DRC, Gabon, Equatorial Guinea) | support the definition, formulation, development and implementation of the sub-regional initiative in an intersectoral manner. We call for the creation of a think tank to oversee these processes to address these recommendations.
