Intervention of the NGO New Humanity, to the General Conference of UNESCO - November 2021

We, the youth of the NGO New Humanity, believe that a united world is possible. How can we achieve this?

We would be taking a step forward if we all strive to love each other's country as our own; if we all commit to an integral ecology by taking respectful and caring actions towards our fellow human beings and towards the nature on which our lives depend. This concerns us all, regardless of our beliefs. Whether we are young or old. Whether we have power or not.

New Humanity, present in all continents, has placed an important value on intergenerationality so that adults, youth and children can lead change: together. We believe that education for Global Citizenship is a priority. Indeed, without the awareness that we all belong to the same human family, and that we are all connected, we will not be able to progress towards the well-being of all.

We are committed to addressing the local and global challenges of today's world. We are also committed to carrying out significant actions as part of the "Zero Hunger" and "Pathways for a United World" projects, and to always shedding light on the importance of caring for relationships. For example: youth and children from Mexico and the United States ran together across their common border, on both sides of the wall that separates them, to live for fraternity.

Another example: Young people from 7 East African countries (Kenya, Tanzania, Burundi, Uganda, South Sudan, Madagascar, Rwanda), along with the Democratic Republic of Congo, have organized a network of young leaders who dream of a renewed Africa: "Together for a New Africa". Their goal is to strengthen youth participation in politics to build the Africa they want. In collaboration with the National Commissions of these countries, and UNESCO's Participation Programme, they have developed a training program based on the cultural roots of their own peoples, bringing a culture of universal fraternity to achieve the global objectives of the United Nations and the African Union.

Based on these good practices, our NGO New Humanity, together with many NGOs partners of UNESCO and the Liaison Committee, have prepared the NGO-UNESCO Forum on the theme of Global Citizenship, on December 6 and 7. We invite you to join us.

Thank you.
