Currently, no vaccinations or medical exams are required to enter Chile. The water in Santiago is safe for consumption. However, it is recommended to drink bottled water during the first few days of your stay.

***It is highly recommended to purchase international medical insurance and verify the coverage provided by the selected insurance with Chilean companies and clinics.

Weather

Santiago experiences a Mediterranean climate. May mornings and nights can be freezing with temperatures starting at 7°C, but they generally increase from midday and reach a high of 21°C.

Time Zone

During the months of May and June, the time zone of Santiago is GMT-3.

Currencies

In Chile, the official currency used is the Chilean Peso (CLP), and it is the only valid currency accepted. The exchange rate of CLP with other currencies such as the US Dollar (USD) and Euro (EUR) fluctuates daily but not significantly. You may check the updated value of the dollar here.

***We remind you that the entry of more than USD 10,000 in cash, or its equivalent in another currency, must be declared to customs.

Most currencies can be exchanged at commercial banks and exchange bureaus. Commercial banks are open Monday through Friday from 9:00 am to 2:00 pm, while exchange bureaux de change opening hours vary.

In Chile, most major credit cards are accepted in stores, hotels and restaurants.

ATMs are available at most commercial banks, shopping malls, pharmacies and gas stations. ATMs are affiliated with international systems such as Plus and Cirrus.

Security

As everywhere else in the world, the main security precautions for large cities apply. Avoid going out with jewelry, cameras or visible electronics, as you could be a victim of theft (especially at night and in secluded neighbourhoods and streets). The same goes for backpacks: do not carry cameras (video or otherwise) in outside pockets, especially in crowded areas or when using public transportation.

Do not exchange dollars or any other currency on the street. Always go to authorized exchange houses.

In the event of an earthquake or strong tremor, remain calm. Remember that Chile is a seismic country and the country's infrastructure is designed to cope with these natural events. If you are inside a building, stay inside. If you are outside, stay outside. Entering or leaving a building can cause accidents. If you are inside a building, look for strong structures - under a table or bed, under a door, next to a pillar, a master wall or in a corner - and protect your head. Never rush for an exit or use an elevator. If you are in the street, watch out for electrical wires, ledges, glass and fallen tiles.

Tobacco regulations

Smoking is not permitted in enclosed public places in Chile. However, some restaurants have smoking terraces.

Power supply

The power supply in Chile is 220 V/50 Hz and uses three-hole in-line connections (IEC 23-16).

Tips

In restaurants, bars and cafés, a tip of 10% is generally the norm. Sometimes the tip is already included in the bill. Before paying the bill, you will be asked about the percentage you wish to tip.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

Santiago offers a public transportation system that comprises buses known as "Micros" and six subway lines. If you want to know more about public transportation in the Metropolitan Region, you can download the "Red" application. This app provides information on bus routes, their schedules, and where to take them.

An integrated fare system has been introduced that allows free transfers within two hours. Transfers from buses to the subway in a single trip are included for a small surcharge.

Before boarding a bus, make sure to check which route it takes and which stop it comes to. Signs at each stop indicate which buses stop there.

To ride the subway or micro, you must use a BIP card. Single tickets are not available. The BIP card can be purchased for $1,550 (not including initial charge) at subway stations or BIP Centers.

Connections between different subway lines are free of charge. You can add any amount of money between $1,000 and $25,500 to your BIP card. The recharge is done online or at the metro stations.

Metro stations close at 23:00. Many buses run all night, as do cabs.

Please note that both buses and subways are very crowded during rush hours (from 8:00 to 10:00 hrs. and from 17:00 to 19:00 hrs.).

The fare for public transportation varies based on the time of use. See below for details.
